

Freiburger Zeitschrift für GeschlechterStudien (fzg) Permanent Open Call for Papers

The Freiburger Zeitschrift für GeschlechterStudien provides an academic forum for the discussion of gender-relevant issues. The journal is particularly noted for its interdisciplinary orientation. The approach and ethos of the fzg seeks not only to build bridges between the humanities, social sciences and cultural studies, but goes beyond this, interfacing with technical, scientific and medical disciplines, as well as offering academic reflections on the nature of these relationships. Topics of current academic relevance as well as sensitive or controversial issues in wider society play a role in these discussions and debates.

The Freiburger Zeitschrift für GeschlechterStudien publishes regular calls for papers with a particular thematic focus. These can be found on our website. In addition, the editors are pleased to receive submissions at any time that address interdisciplinary questions in the context of gender research and have a clear male-, female-, gender- or queer-theoretical foundation.

We look forward to receiving your submission!

The editorial team of the fzg

The editors will consider and make a decision on your text by the appropriate deadlines. Please send your submission to: fzg@zag.uni-freiburg.de. Articles should not exceed 40,000 characters, including references and bibliography. In addition, please send a maximum ten line summary of your article (abstract) and five keywords (in German and English). Review articles should not be in excess of 12,000 characters (including spaces).

The fzg exclusively publishes original works and we require you to confirm this along with the submission of the article for consideration. The relevant form, as well as the guidelines on the formatting and presentation of your text, can be found on our website: www.fzg.uni-freiburg.de. Thank you!
